Becoming a PADI Divemaster is a 5-Stage Process:

- KNOWLEDGE DEVELOPMENT – With a combination of instructor-led and self-study modules, you will learn all about the standards and procedures of being a dive professional. Your knowledge of dive-related physics, physiology and environmental systems and practices will be enhanced, and you will gain a full understanding of why diving is taught and run the way it is today.
- SKILLS DEVELOPMENT – A Dive Professional is expected to have excellent dive skills, and therefore a major component of a Divemaster program is the development of these skills to demonstration standard.
- PRACTICAL SESSIONS – Divemasters are leaders in the industry, running dives, and making sure everyone has a good time. You will learn skills such as effective dive planning, briefings, set up and management of dive sites, and also practice scenarios where those skills and your in-water skills could be put to the test.
- WORKSHOPS – There are various programs that a Divemaster can run. In a series of workshops, you will prepare to run these programs for customers, giving you a chance to hone your skills in specific areas.
- COURSE ASSISTANCE – Divemasters often take on the role of a teaching assistant for Instructors with students undergoing training. By practising this role, you can ensure that you are fully prepared for course that you assist on.
